Why Attend

Governments invest heavily in programmes and need to know whether they work. Monitoring and evaluation systems provide evidence for accountability, learning and better resource allocation.

This Aractech course covers results frameworks, theories of change, indicators, monitoring systems, evaluation types and methods, impact evaluation basics, data collection, reporting and using findings in decision-making for government programmes. Participants design an M&E framework.

Course Methodology

- Framework workshops
- Indicator design exercises
- Case studies
- Evaluation planning
- Group discussions

Course Objectives

- Develop theories of change and results frameworks
- Design indicators and monitoring systems
- Select evaluation types and methods
- Plan data collection
- Analyse and report M&E findings
- Use evidence for decision-making

Target Audience
